CRUISING ON THE HISTORIC POTOMAC

President McKinley and Party Take an Outing.

Departure of the Sylph From the Navy Yard.

Mount Vernon-To neturn This

The naval dispatch boat Sylph steamed away from the navy yard at 10:30 o'c'o'k this forenoon with a distinguished party on board, to make a cruise down the historic and picturesque Potomac. Those on the Sylph are President and Mrs. McKinley, with their-maid, steward and footman, and the following White House

Major and Mrs. Rand, Colonel and Mrs. Myron Herrick, of Cleveland, Ohio Cap-tain and Mrs. McWilliams, Miss Mary Barber, Miss Shields, Miss Mabel McKin-

y. Miss Harter, and James Barber. This outing was arranged for a double arpose, to give the President a few of relaxation from the high prossure of his official duties and for the tertainment of Mr. and Mrs. McKinley's

The arrival of the distinguished party at the navy yard was announced by the boom the navy yard was announced by the boom-ing of cannon, which gave the President's salute. The Sylph was trim and neat and presented a pretty picture with her flut-tering flags and a long column of gray smoke praceeding from her smokestack and hanging low over the Anacostia River in the murky atmosphere, while the jackies were spick and span in their new uniforms. The vessel was under a full head of steam and all arrangements were complete for the Presidential party. The Sylph will touch at Fort Washingon Mount Vernon, and perhaps several other points, and will return to the navy yard about 4 o'clock this afternoon, whe carriages will be in waiting to convey the excursionists to the White House.

"I have lought a good light. I have finished my course. I have kept the fath." II Timothy, 4: 7. This Tablet is Erected by The Officers of the Atlantic Torpedo Boat Florida. Chaplain H. H. Clark, of the Naval Academy, paid a tribute to the life and character of Ensign Bagley, whom he knew well and whom everybody at the Academy respected as a noble and manly young fel-low. He came from the South and was appointed a naval codet from the State of North Carolina, September 5, 1889. Chaplain Clark said in part:

If Ensign Bagley could direct our thoughts this morning, he would doubtless say: "Do not callogize me. Dwell upon those things which helped to mold me; gained mestery over me; hecame deep convictions in my heart; bright inspirations in my lile."
It is true that a man is nothing save as he represents true ideas and principles, good qualities and purposes. He cannot, indeed, speak in terms of enlogy without dwelling upon these things. When a man has lived and died for a profession the best of him is three. His profession incloses,
